IX. M&A TRANSACTIONS AND LEGAL DISPUTES	425
1. INTRODUCTION	429

2. TYPES OF CLAIMS	435
2.1. Requests for Specific Performance	438
2.1.1. The Subject of the Performance: Subject-Matter of the Obligation	438
2.1.2. Difficulties Encountered in Claims for Specific Performance	439
2.2. Compensation Claims	443
2.2.1. Breach of Obligations	445
2.2.1.1. Definition of Obligations	445
2.2.1.2. Validity of Obligations	445
2.2.1.3. Issue of Partial Invalidity	447
2.2.1.4. Breach of Primary Obligations and Secondary Obligations	449
2.2.1.5. Each Agreement is Subject to Compensation Claims in Accordance with its Own Provisions	451
2.2.2. Fault	456
2.2.2.1. Proof of Fault: Backwards Opening Door	457
2.2.2.2. Effects of Fault in the Case of Breach of Obligations, Guarantee and Liability for Defects	458
2.2.2.3. What is Fault and Where Should It Be Directed At? How Significant Should a Fault Be for it to Result in Liability?	460
2.2.2.4. The Vicarious Agent's Fault	462
2.2.2.5. Reasons Removing Fault	462
2.2.3. Damages	463
2.2.3.1. Concepts of Negative Damages and Positive Damages	465
2.2.3.2. Discretion of A Judge In Determination of the Damages	468
2.2.3.3. Punitive Damages, Liquidated Damages, Indirect Damages and Others	469

2.2.3.4. Distinction between Direct Damages and Reflective Damages.....	471
2.2.3.5. Distinction between Direct Damages and Indirect Damages.....	473
2.2.3.6. Recommendation	477
2.2.4. Causal Link	478
2.2.4.1. Burden of Proof Pertaining to Causal Link.....	479
2.2.4.2. Logical Causality, Appropriate Causality, and the Protection Purpose of the Norm.....	479
2.3. Conversion of the Claim into Compensation after Filing the Lawsuit for Specific Performance	487

3.2. Penalty Clause.....	503
3.2.1. What is a Penalty Clause and What is the Function of a Penalty Clause?	504
3.2.1.1. Proof of Fault is regulated by Law and Cannot be Ignored.....	509

3.2.1.2. It Is Very Natural That the Burden of Proof in The Penalty Clause is Contrary to the General Structure of Contractual Liability, Since the Penalty Clause Already Differs from the General Liability Principles of the Law Of Obligations by Its Very Nature and Brings an Exception to it	510
3.2.1.3. It is Both Fair and Logical that the Creditor, Who Would Not be Under the Burden of Proving Fault If the Penalty Clause Had Never Existed, is Subjected to this Additional Burden	511
3.2.1.4. This is in line with the Realities of the Business World: The Creditor, More Precisely the Stronger Party in the Relationship, Claims the Penal Clause.....	513
3.2.1.5. This Legislation Has Been in Force Since the Swiss Code of Obligations of 1881. Some of Those Who Criticized It Have Passed Away, But This Provision Has Been in Force for 140 Years	514
3.2.1.6. The Absence of This Provision in German Law is Based on a Completely Different Reason	514
3.2.1.7. If Compensation is Claimed for Excessive Damage in Money Debt, the Burden of Proof of Fault is on the Shoulders of the Debtor. However, the Legislation on Default Interest is not Comparable to the Penalty Clause.....	515
3.2.1.8. Conclusion: The Law Seeks and Should Seek to Establish a Balance of Interests. Article 180/2 of the Turkish Code of Obligation is in Accordance with the Balance of Interests between the Parties, Justice, and the Realities of Life. Moreover, It Has Been Alive for 140 Years Despite All Amendments	518
3.2.2. The Secondary Nature of Penalty Clauses	519
3.2.3. What is Not a Penalty Clause?	521

3.3. Clauses to Release from Liability or Damages Because of Third-Party Claims (“Hold Harmless Clauses”)	523
3.3.1. Third-Party Claims in the Transfer of a Commercial Enterprise in Accordance With Article 202 of the Turkish Code of Obligations	524
